4. The following Soviet military telephone lines were observed in September 1953:

- a. Arensfelde-Blumberg. Guarded by sentries.
- b. Riche-Hoenow. Patrolled.
- c. Neulindenberg-Wartenberg. Patrolled.
- d. Wandlitz-Bernau, along road. This line is being put in by Soviet troops.
- e. Werneuchen-Finow. Heavily patrolled, after having been cut by saboteurs.

5. On the Biesenthal-Finow road, on the right side, between the 9.7 and 9.1 kilometer milestones, there are wooden signposts with the following text: "Sentries fire without warning on persons who loiter here or pass this installation at night without lights." The installation is surrounded by a high wooden fence with guard towers at the corners. Stone barracks and other buildings can be seen inside. A railroad spur line leads from the installation directly to the Finow station. Aircraft and hangars can also be seen behind the fence, patrolled by interior guards.
